

Manage Your Own 24x7

Profootball24x7.com is seeking bloggers who know something about their team and the game of football, can articulate insightful opinions in a meaningful way and aren't afraid of fun, challenging and engaging debate.

Maybe you are an armchair quarterback and you aren't always on board with the opinions of your town's columnists and you want to put yours out there. Maybe you are that caller to sports talk radio and you like to debate the shows' hosts. Maybe you are a college student or recent grad looking to build your resume and you seek a meaningful outlet upon which to do that.

OR...perhaps you've always wanted to publish your thoughts on the game because your team's offensive or defensive coordinator really chaps your ass, you'd love to let him have it but somewhere along the line life got in the way and you gave up on the idea.

Well give up no more!

If any of this sounds like you we have a home here at Profootball24x7.com to broadcast your thoughts across the globe.

Some of our writers just do it for the "love of the game." Others get their blogs sponsored and earn some extra cash for their opining. Some of you may even want to build your own livelihood around something you love to do.

Our founder Tony Lombardi explains it this way...

"Since they were young I've always told my kids to pursue an education because it gives you options. But when you finish with your education, before you burden yourself with debt and other obligations, pursue a career you love so much that you'd almost do it for free. If you can make that happen, you'll never feel like you've worked a day in your life.

"Eventually, 'do what you love and love what you do' became my personal credo", Lombardi explains.

"And then it dawned on me, I wish someone had given me that advice for if they did, I'd be a sports journalist right now."

Lombardi continued, "Then one day I woke up after having gone through several company acquisitions that impacted my job and decided to pursue my dream, to kick logic to the curb and practice my preaching to the kids."

Soon thereafter Profootball24x7.com was born.

"Eventually we want to find 32 others who share my ambition – and let them manage their own 24x7", Lombardi adds. "It's a great job because it's mobile, it can be run from anywhere, it channels your passion in a profitable way and it never, ever feels like work.

"I'm now living the life I described to my children."

If any of this interests you drop a note to Tony at: TL@profootball24x7.com

Profootball24x7.com, "Where football isn't just a game!"